

The Daily Gazetteer.

THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1745.

Yesterday arriv'd the Mails from Flanders.

Verona, April 16.

Rince Lobkowitz, with his whole Army, is at present posted under the Cannon of Modens, in which City he has a large Magazine. It is believed he intends to wait there the coming up of the Succours he expects from Germany and the Milanese; and it is not doubted, that as soon as he receives them, he will act offensively against the Spaniards and Neapolitans who are encamped before him; but his Highness has chosen to do well, that notwithstanding their Superior force, they do not attack him; nor is it probable that by him, because this too is out of their power leaving it in his to flank them.

April 27. The Officers of the Elector of Bavaria arrived here, and are busy in surveying the Electoral Palace agaist the approaching Ceremonies of the Choice of an Emperor, which remains till June; and it is thought the Election comes sooner, if it were consistent with the Will, which is owing to the Senate we have of giving a Head to the Empire as soon as the other, because through the Divine Providence things have so chang'd their Face, that we may be in an Election without any apprehension of interfering therein, as his Electoral Highness has observ'd in a very pathetic circular written by him last Week to each of the Electors; give it confirm'd to us by several Letters from Parts of Swabia, that the Austrian Hussars, between Geislingen and the Neckar with Detachment of French Troops, which escort'd the Cheft, of which having defeated them, became Masters. We dare not, however, say, to warrant this Piece of News, which have no other Foundation, than M. Chambaud from Augsburg, on Easter Day, all the time he had in that City, for support of his Negotiations. A Courier lately arrived here, brought the news of M. Mallebois's being safely arriv'd at Paris, where he had deliver'd his Dispatches to the Minister, he continued his Route for Ulm, as it is said, with Orders for the Prince to assemble all the Troops on the Rhine, and as speedy Succour as possible to such as are arriv'd in the Neckar, and to those who are coming thither from Bavaria; so that we very soon hear, that his Highness is disposing all Things to evacuate the Empire.

All of a Private Letter from Augsburg, dated April 24, 1745.

Electr. Highness of Bavaria set out this Day, to return into his own Dominions, attended by Religion, and Justice, which, wherever he will dissipate all the Horrors of War, and extirpate the Griefs and Troubles that have so long tormented his faithful Subjects. Joy is painted on every one belonging to the Court, and such natural Characters, as imposes Silence on whole private and particular Interests hinder not taking any Part therein. The whole Empire publicly testified the Share it takes in this Event, and this City in particular could not forbear its sincere Joy and Gratitude by a Declar. from the Senate, to compliment his Electoral Highness theron. Count Coloredo, from Fuersten, set out with his Highness, brother to the Solms, and the Count of Biron, and each of them a large Share in the Success of this great Affair. It was particularly owing to this, that the Voyage to Manheim did not take from the great Confidence the Empress Dowager, the young Elector, had in his Virtue and Prudence. The Bavarian Ministers may justly challenge their share therein, since they all concurred, as far as they can, in bringing it about. Field Marshal Bethani is assembling all his Forces, and making necessary Dispositions to continue his March down the Rhine. His Light-arm'd Troops took Donawert on the 19th, the French having quitted that City on the 18th, and left behind them the great Magazines there, in order to retire the way to Heilbron. There is likewise a Body of French at the Heels of the French, who are returning out of Swabia, towards the Neckar. We are likewise informed that 50,000 Peasants in that Country have taken Arms, in order to accelerate the Retreat of the French, by knocking on the Head as many of them as fall into their Hands, in return for the Usage they have met with from them for some time past.

Andernach, April 18. The Army of the Allies made last Week some Dispositions for marching forward, but the Day before they were to have moved, those Dispositions were changed. The French contine to exact heavy Contributions throughout the whole Electorate of Treves. Capt. Le Favre, of the Regiment of Styrum, whom Duke Arenberg sent lately to the Landgrave William of Hesse, in order to know whether that Prince consider'd himself as any longer bound by the Treaty of Frankfort, return'd on the 25th to the Head Quarters at Nieden, and deliver'd to the Duke a Letter from the Landgrave, conceiv'd in the most obliging Terms possible, in which he informed him, that, by Order from the King of Sweden, he had recall'd the Hessian Troops in the Service of Bavaria, and was resolv'd to observe, for the future, a strict Neutrality.

Nagae, April 30. There is no longer any Talk either of our declaring War against France, or of that Court's declaring War against us. Their High Mightinesses think themselves in Condition to fulfil all their Engagements without having Recours to the Formality of declaring War; and, on the other Hand, the Court of Versailles does not think it proper, at present, to force the Republick on making stronger Efforts than their present Engagements require.

I R E L A N D.

Dublin, April 16. Last Sunday died, at his Seat at Crumlin, the Hon. Capt. Richard Allen, Knight of the Shire for the County of Kildare, and Uncle to the present Lord Viscount Allen. A Gentleman of the strictest Honour, Justice, and Humanity, and a sincere Friend to the Interests of true Liberty and his Country.

The same Day died Mrs. W. Fly, Relict of the late Garret Welsy, Esq; in the 78th Year of her Age, to whom, as Providence allotted a long Life, it appeared she understood the Condition of the Grant, by applying it to all the Purposes of a good Life.

Last Week the Right Hon. Lieutenant-General Parker, Commander in Chief of his Majesty's Forces in this Kingdom, arrived here from England. And this Day a large Fleet of Corn Ships arrived here from England, and other Parts, and more is daily expected.

L O N D O N.

We learn by private Letters from Franckfort, that a Treaty of perpetual Friendship and Alliance is on Foot between the Courts of Vienna, Dresden, and Munich, by which all the Disputes relating to the Austrian Succession will be finally determined.

The same Letters say, that the young Elector of Bavaria will shortly espouse the Princess Royal and Electoral of Saxony; and that the Prince Royal of Saxony, will, at the same time, espouse the Princess Charlotte of Lorrain.

According to our last Letters from Brussels, the Army of the Allies will speedily take the Field in Flanders, and march directly to find out the French, in order to give them Battle.

The Prince of Orange, Deverson, from Genoa for London, ran on the Rocks going into Mahon, in bad Weather, but got off again; the Cargo receiv'd but little Damage.

The Henpeck Privateer. Capt. Francis, of Topsham, has taken, and sent into Plymouth, a large Dutch Ship of 400 Tons, bound to France, laden with Horses.

The William and Mary, Spencer, from Peterburgh and Gottenburgh, is lost in the River.

The Jane, Wright, from Barbados for Philadelphia, was taken by the French three Days after she came out.

Yesterday a Committee of the Commissioners of the Land Tax, for the City and Liberty of Westminster, met at the Exchequer Chamber in Westminster Hall, to settle the Quota's in an equal Proportion throughout their severall Parishes; and then adjourn'd to Tuesday the 30th instant, at Eleven in the Forenoon, being the next general Meeting, in order to Report the same.

Yesterday was held a private Chapter of the most Noble Order of the Garter at St. James's, when his Majesty was pleased to give one of the vacant Garters to the Duke of Saxe Wessenfelds, Chief General of the Forces belonging to the King of Poland.
